Yes, we are seniors! For four years we have been at Lawrence, and now as that long-looked-for day, Graduation, fast approaches, we begin to realize what our school days really mean to us and how much we are going to miss Lawrence.

Our first social event of the year was to welcome the Freshmen. We gave them a joyous send-off, Freshman Day, which was followed in the evening by the Freshman Reception.

THE LAWRENCE LYRE

Worried about its financial status (being sixty cents "in the red"), the class decided to present a play, "Spring Green," which, coached by our adviser, Miss Margaret Totman, proved to be a great success.

Under the supervision of our adviser, Miss McClintock, the Junior Class has had a very successful year. The Juniors inaugurated the social life of the season by giving the first party, "The Harvest Hop," which was a great success. This event was held in the Auditorium, which was attractively and gaily decorated in accordance with the season. During the basketball season, the Class sponsored several parties, after the games, which were enjoyed by everyone.

One of the outstanding events of the year was Junior Readings, which

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

How many people have visited Rockefeller Center? Reports indicate that each day over 100,000 persons visit this well-known city within a city. The center was erected for John D. Rockefeller, the American capitalist, at a cost of $100,000,000.

The western section, comprised of five buildings, is known as Radio City, which consists of Radio City Music hall, (the largest indoor theater in the world with a seating capacity of 6,200 persons), the RKO Building, the RCA building, the RCA Building west, and the Center Theater. Each of these buildings varies in height from seven stories (Radio Center Music Hall) to seventy stories (RCA Building, the tallest building in the Center). Among the other nine buildings in the Center are: the British Empire Building, the International Building, and the Time and Life Building.

The entire project covers 12 acres below which, with the exception of the RKO Building and the Center Theater, are concourses that extend several stories below the street level. All along the way there are stores of all kinds. However, there are no stores in the space directly under a street, since the streets are owned by the city of New York, and as the ownership extends "through to China" (as the saying goes). If one walking in a concourse happens to notice blank walls instead of shop windows, he must come to the conclusion that he is directly under a street. Some of the lower concourses are used for the delivery and collection of mail; others, wholly for supplies.

Another interesting feature of the Center is the supplying of heat to the various buildings. Heat is forced through huge underground tunnels from another section of the city, and it is conveyed into the rooms by means of grilles, placed around the door casings, which take the place of radiators.

One hundred ninety-one fast-moving elevators have been installed in Rockefeller Center. Some of these, the fastest in the world, travel at the rate of 1,400 feet a minute. Thus it takes only a few seconds to reach the Observation Roof, atop the RCA Building's seventy stories, where one is able to get a vast panorama of one of the world's largest cities.

If one is desirous of seeing some of the wonders of the world together with plenty of excitement, it would be well worth one's time to take a guided tour of Rockefeller Center.

A TRAGIC STORY

I had a pig
Whose name was Ben,
And I kept him in
A special pen.

He ate everything
That came his way,
Growing fatter and fatter
Day by day.

Meat rationing came—
This was the end,
For I caught and killed
My old friend Ben!

Now if you're hungry,
Come see me,
And together we'll dine
On ham and tea!

ALTON MITCHELL, 12-O.

THE MADMAN'S CACHE

The night was cold, dark, and depressing. The wind howled incessantly among the rafters of the damp, high-posted room while its only occupant huddled over a few faintly glowing coals. As I looked closer, I saw his hand tremble as he studied a series of faint scratches on a scrap of worn, discolored parchment. His face and entire being seemed utterly consumed with one idea and one goal. Then he folded the map with the utmost care, as if possessing it meant life itself to him.

As the fire slowly died, he gathered the shreds of his tattered overcoat more closely around his emaciated form and stooped to light a candle which he placed in the neck of a bottle. His features in the eerie candlelight were ghastly. His face was terrifying, hideous, and his mouth, cruel. His cheeks were hollowed and sunken; his eyes appeared abnormally large, and his entire appearance was that of a man who was slowly dying of hunger.

Stealthily and without a sound, he unhooked the latch and stepped into a narrow, pitch-black, foul-smelling passage. The thin flame of his candle wavered, threatening complete darkness. Edging his way down the corridor, he furtively glanced about him, and then kneeling on the damp, dirty floor, he scratched about as if he were hunting for something. Slowly he opened a trap door which creaked and groaned on its rusty hinges as though it was very seldom opened.

He lowered himself through the opening into a tiny room. Pausing a moment, he consulted a map. Suddenly with wild impatience that was horrible to watch, he lunged toward a chest in a corner, covered with dust and cobwebs, and tore open the lid. What would the chest contain. Gold? Pieces of eight? Jewels? No! To my utter amazement his face now seemed content, and the muscles of his clenched jaw relaxed as he withdrew from the box a half-pound of pure, precious golden-yellow butter!

 THE THINGS I LIKE

I like to travel here and there;
 I like the wind blowing in my hair;
 I like to see the maple leaves
 As they dance and flutter in the breeze;
 I like the flowers in the spring;
 I like the bees and the birds that sing;
 I like the country air so free,
 Oh, but it's the city life for me!

ELAINE WOODS, 12-M.

JEANNINE FOWLER, 12-M.

THE COUNTRY

Have you ever traveled through the country on a warm afternoon in summer? Try it sometime, and you will find that the world is beautiful; that it is a world for the living to see, to hear, to smell, and to enjoy.

You pass a small pond where boys and girls are fishing. You wonder why there is war when everything seems so peaceful. You wonder, also, why these scenes are sometimes destroyed by battles, sickness, accidents, and death.

You continue on your way, and you see throngs of happy children playing joyfully together. Some may be playing ball; others romping in the fields with their pets—a dog or, perhaps, a pony. All, however, are living and playing harmoniously together.

As you homeward wend your way, you are glad to be alive. Thoughts of war, strife, hatred are completely obliterated from your mind. You think only of the happiness that is around you. Yes, it is a truly wonderful world.

ANN HEBERT, 12-O.

IS THIS JUSTICE?

I hate writing poems,
I abhor making verse,
I detest English grammar,
And what makes it worse,
I'm obliged to write poetry
About the beauty of spring—
About little animals and
All kinds of such things.
This punishment we bear
Just to get A's
At times seems unbearable!
What so you say?

MURIEL MITCHELL, 12-M.

MY WIFE

This evening as I lay in my bed, listening to the radio, I thought I heard my dog trying to get in the back door. Immediately I jumped out of bed, put on my slippers and bathrobe, and went downstairs.

Opening the door to let my dog in, I became petrified, for there standing before me was my wife, whom I had deserted thirty years ago. She was standing with a pistol in her hand. I tried to speak, but words failed me. Then it happened—she shot me three times!

I am dying now and have not much time to write. My last words are: "Never trust a woman."

TURNER LAWRY, 12M.

EXECUTIVE POWERS

To be President of a nation
Must be quite a job indeed,
For the members of your Cabinet
Your commands refuse to heed.

And when you try to pass a bill
Through the Senate or the House,
They criticize as if you had
The cerebellum of a mouse!

Whenever you veto a bill of theirs,
They raise an awful fuss,
And make you think a new President
Is of certainty a must.

However, on the other hand,
The living is really fine—
With kings and queens and dutchesses
You sit and talk and dine.

You live in a lavish mansion
Resplendent with the best
Of furniture and carpets
And plenty of the rest.

You can own a fleet of motorboats,
A sailboat, and a yacht,
And at the end of the four years' term,
Can marvel at what you've caught!

ROBERT FALES, 12M.

FAITHFULNESS

Time and time again the oft-quoted saying, "Dog is man's best friend," has been proven true. His children, whom he has reared with the greatest care, may turn against him; the friends that he has trusted with his good name may become his enemies; those who honor him when he has wealth and prosperity have nothing to do with him when he is down and out, but his dog will ever be loyal to him and even lick the hand that has no food to offer. If the master's only place of refuge is the broad, open fields, his dog will eagerly accompany him and lovingly protect him from the dangers which he might otherwise encounter.

When death claims the master and he is laid to rest in the cold earth, one can often see his faithful dog, wandering about and whining pitifully, for he knows that his master will never more return. Oftentimes absent from his customary habitat, he can be found by his master's grave with his head between his paws and his eyes full of sorrow—faithful in life and in death.

FLORENCE POTELLE, 12-O.

REVENGE!

This was revenge! Yes, sweet revenge! To be avenged was my only desire. All through the winter, it occupied my heart night and day. Now at last, I was to be avenged in the spring—the season of joy for most people—but not for my victim!

I waited an exact number of days. This had to be perfectly timed, as the time was short. My planning depended entirely upon the knowledge of certain traits and character quirks of my quarry, which I had faithfully secured from those who knew him best. I had him right down to the last letter—the very last letter.

The right time finally presented itself, in the early evening—just at twilight. Patiently I stalked, being superlatively positive to be silent as a mouse, invisible as a shadow.

At last he was within my range! I contemplated as to where I should place the bullet—between the eyes, in the neck, in the heart, or to let him suffer by wounding him in the leg. Suddenly a drop of mercy invaded my soul, so I slowly, quietly, gently, easily, craftily cocked the hammer, took perfect aim, and squeezed the trigger . . . A roar! A burst of flame! A puff of smoke! With a death scream my quarry fell on his face, kicking his last!

I hastened to my feet, ran over to look with envy and pride at the well-placed bullet which had killed the heretofore evasive woodchuck!

ROBERT FALES, 12M.

ROUND TRIP

I went to the country in May—
A donkey right near me did bray,
He picked up his heels—
I know how it feels;
So I went back to the city to stay!

THEODORE JULIA, 12M,
RICHARD ELLIS, 12M.

METAMORPHOSIS

They were desperate years. The depression was at its height. The scrub-woman, a poor, pathetic, shrunken creature, in the eyes of many, was lucky. Yes, lucky, because she had a job. Every night after the city had long since forgotten its anxieties in sleep, this worn, tired figure stepped from the corner which sheltered her and made her way down the littered streets to a huge, silent structure. Then for long, tedious hours she stumbled about among the chairs and desks, dragging a pail of soapy water behind her. Her back was bent, and her thin hair, supposedly knotted in her neck, hung in scraggly locks about her face. As the sun began to cast its reflections on the spotless panes, clasping a few pennies in her work-worn hand, she slowly found her way back to her hovel, only to return again and again until death finally released her.

The war came, threatening and powerful, bringing destruction to many—undreamed of prosperity to others. The scrubwoman now casts a different shadow. The city is still asleep as she goes to work, but the rest of the scene has changed. She drives to work in a battered Ford; her hair is tied up in a kerchief, because it has just been waved. She enters the building swiftly, hangs up her fur coat, removes her diamond ring, and whisks through her tasks. Having completed her work in a short time, she is soon home again, eyeing proudly the bulging pay envelope and considering the many luxuries which the contents will bring.

THE 12M ENGLISH CLASS

In the first row sits Muriel,
The brightest in the class
And then there is Turner
Who makes us want to laugh.

Good sports? There are many Including Bobby Fales;
Yes, and then comes Eleanor
Who keeps us all in gales!

There are also many singers—
Jeannine, Helen, and Elaine,
And also versatile Edwin
Who'll sit in the Hall of Fame.

Oh, yes, and then there's Teddy,
The smallest in the class,
And in front of him sits Eldred
For whom books are just a farce.

There are several others
Including Norman B.
Whose arguments and playful jokes
The teacher just can't see!

We also have some glamor boys—
Two of whom are Jack and Hank,
And although they never study much
They seem to get good rank.

THE LAWRENCE LYRE

Then there is Dottie Briggs,
The girl with the lovely red hair;
Also Marjorie, Glenys and Elaine,
Whom you'd hardly know were there.

Last of all comes Richard E.
And his crony, Coleman Dyer,
Whose ready wit and calmness, too,
The girls do all admire.

So this concludes our illustrious class,
The Class of '46,
And a finer group of boys and girls
One could never pick!

ELEANOR ESTES, 12M.

YESTERDAY

Slowly the moon lifted over San Pedro, sending before it messengers of silvery moonbeams to herald its coming. The earth became a fascinating panorama of soft, silken mist. The towering, fragrant pines whispered mysteriously as a gentle wind caressed the side of the mountain. The pine needles luxuriantly carpeted the mountain side, and the old Indian trail rustled under Jonita's small sandaled feet as he lingered on the slopes. Why should he worry? Had he not hurried all day at his work? Was not the night for rest and tranquility? To dream of love, music, and of joyful fiestas? Of days long past when that same faithful moon was younger and swung arrogantly along with the conquistadores, and plodded along with the padres? This super-annuated soul of heaven itself, the same aged mountains, the same rustic, old giants swept his romantic heart back into the dim memories of the sleeping past.

BEVERLIE GRENDALL, 12-O.

SPRING

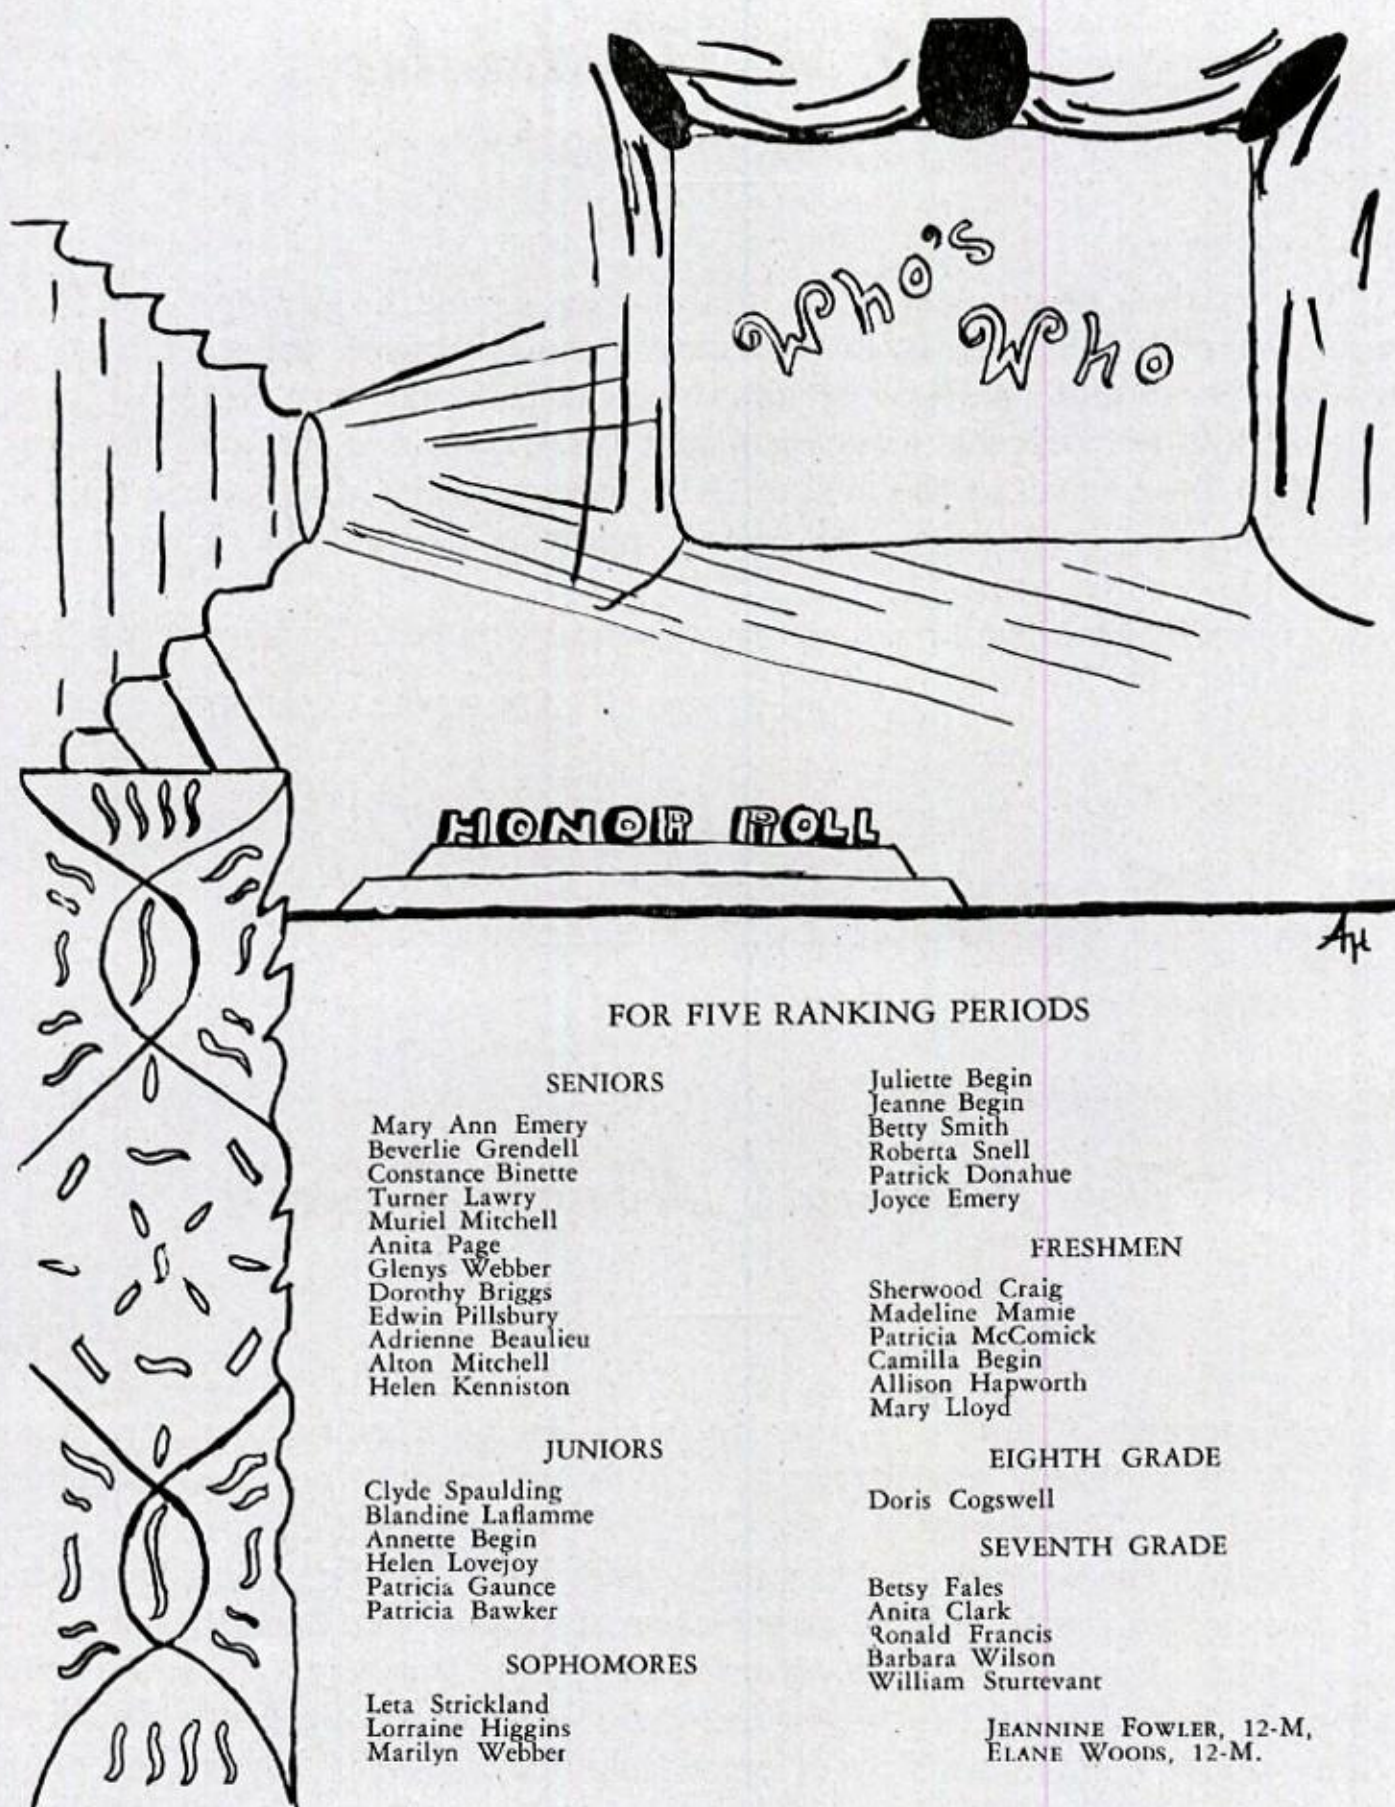

When someone mentions the word "spring,"
It brings to my mind so many things:
Perhaps it's new buds or burning leaves;
Muddy shoes and mothers' pleas;
Maybe a prom, or a sunset to see;
A welcome robin, or a plump bumble bee.
But whatever my thoughts, one is always the same—
Only a few short weeks more and vacation again!

MURIEL MITCHELL, 12M.

FISHING

Pickarel, perch, trout, and cusk
Are easiest caught an hour before dusk.
The salmon migrates from ocean to lake,
And someone this fish will tastily bake.
The togue by summer is a deep-water fish,
Which also tastes well when served on a dish.
The trout is a fighter in both spring and fall,
And makes a fine plaque when hung on the wall
A fisherman comes home without a catch
Which invariably means he has met his match!
Some like to fish in the spring and fall,
But whatever the season, it's the best sport of all!

D. A. R. Candidates

The awarding of a medal to an outstanding girl in the Senior Class is an annual event. The D. A. R. is an organization composed of descendants of persons who fought for the cause of American Independence.

Dependability, success, leadership and patriotism are the qualities considered in the awarding the medal. The Senior Class, after voting for the girls whom they think best typify these qualities, present the names to the faculty to be voted upon.

Lawrence High School has been represented this year by Muriel Mitchel.

ADRIENNE BEAULIEU, 12-O.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

President	Muriel Mitchell
Vice-President	Henry Nicholas
Secretary	Dorothy Briggs
Treasurer	Lucille Violette
Senior Member-at-large	Adrienne Beaulieu
Junior Member-at-large	Annette Begin

The Executive Board has had an unusually busy year, attempting to furnish assembly programs and to improve our school functions in every possible way. Our goal has been to set up typically democratic government and to stimulate good citizenship.

The election of the Lawrence Assembly officers is carried out in nearly the same manner as any major public election. In order to become candidates for the various offices, aspirants must, first of all, secure party names of Lawrence Assembly members. The officers are then elected by secret ballot. The various classes separately elect representatives to attend the Board meetings.

In May, members of the Board attended the Maine Student Council Convention, held at Augusta. Various meetings dealing with problems which confront student leaders were attended. Governor Hildreth addressed the group as did several other eminent persons.

The Council sponsored the annual Activities Banquet on June 4, which is an annual event held for those students who have participated in extra curricular activities or who have attained a high scholastic standing. An entertainment was presented with nearly two hundred students attending.

Plans have been made for a series of Pitt Parker assemblies to begin next fall. These promise to be unusually interesting, as the speakers are outstanding persons in various walks of life.

On behalf of the entire Council, we, the members of the Executive Board, wish the best of luck to next year's Council. We hope you will enjoy your duties as much as we have and will accomplish many of the things which we have left undone.

TRI-SCHOOL SPEAKING CONTEST

The annual Tri-School Speaking Contest took place in the Lawrence High School Auditorium, April 23, 1946, with Winslow, Waterville and Lawrence participating.

The school receiving the highest points is awarded the silver Triangular Speaking Contest trophy, which has been presented to Lawrence for two consecutive years. The school that wins this trophy for three years is permitted to keep it permanently.

The three types of selection were: humorous, oration and dramatic. In the humorous selections, first place was given to James Demsey of Waterville, who gave "Gusenheid's L' Amour et Mort." Second place went to Lawrence Proulx of Lawrence, giving "Johnny Graham, Diplomat." Third place was awarded to Ann Perro, Winslow, offering "Leap Year Leap."

In the oration group Foster Choate of Winslow, giving "Anything Bothering You, Soldier?" won first place. Second place went to Allan Dickey of Lawrence, who gave "World Government or World Destruction." Keirn Hill of Waterville gave "Excerpts from Winston Churchill's Speech at Westmore College," and won third place.

Patricia Gaunce of Lawrence presenting "For France" won first place in the dramatic group. Second place went to Elizabeth Freeman of Waterville, giving "Joseph Sold Into Bondage," and Charmian Herd of Winslow offering "Untitled" won third place.

The judges were Miss Doris Hardy, Coburn Classical Institute; Mr. Earl McKeen, Waterville Junior High School; Miss Margaret Totman, who substituted for Mr. Maurice Noonan of Skowhegan.

Much praise should be given Mrs. Cecelia Thyng, whose excellent coaching made it possible for Lawrence to receive the trophy for two consecutive years.

THE SPEAR CONTEST

On April 26, Lawrence High School had the honor and pleasure of entertaining the representatives of fourteen schools for the annual Spear Contest.

Lawrence was ably represented by Muriel Mitchell, who gave "Rebecca" by Daphne Du Maurier. Winning first place for girls, Miss Mitchell attended the state contest, held at Augusta on May 9.

JUNIOR READINGS

The annual Junior Readings were held in the High School Auditorium on Friday evening, April 12.

An unusually interesting program was presented with the following speakers participating: Annette Begin, Patricia Bowker, Allan Dickey, Patricia Gaunce, Marie Gogan, Orrell Grover, Lloyd Jenkins, Blandine Laflamme, Lawrence Proulx, and Millicent Thorpe.

This year four awards were made. The first prize for girls was won by Patricia Bowker, who gave "Keys of the Kingdom". Patricia Gaunce, giving "For France", won second prize. Lawrence Proulx, who gave "Johnny Graham, Diplomat", was awarded the first prize for boys, while the second went to Allan Dickey, giving "World Government—or World Destruction".

The judges for the contest were: Miss Jennie Nutter, Mrs. Marie Nye, and Mr. Harvey Scribner. Music for the evening was furnished by the Lawrence High School Orchestra.

Much praise should be given Mrs. Cecelia Thyng, who directed the Readings, for the exceedingly fine manner in which they were presented.

For their play the seniors chose "Spring Green," a comedy in three acts. The action takes place in the play room of the Cassell home.

Nina Cassell is expecting a Major in the Air Force and his son for boarders. Her daughter, Tony, dreams of what the son will be like. Since he is from New York, he will be smooth; he will be tall and handsome. When they arrive, the Major turns out to be one of Nina's former admirers, Michael Todd. His son, T. Newton, appears in rumpled clothes, horn-rimmed glasses, and carrying a large suitcase, which proves to be a temporary home for his special breed of earthworms. There is a conflict between him and his father as to whether or not the earthworms should be kept.

Meanwhile, the gang is engaged in trying to get dates for the Red Cross Benefit Masquerade Ball. Tony and Pinkie Ames are both trying to get Dunk Doyle, but Pinkie has the advantage over Tony.

Being Hotchkiss' sister, Eula comes home in the midst of the confusion. As she has always been rather unattractive, they try to arrange an escort for her and decide to throw Newton and Eula together by telling Newton how wonderful she is. When she arrives, however, she is stunning in the latest New York fashion. Newton falls hard for her, and even names his special breed of earthworms "Eulalia" for her. Dunk Doyle also falls for her.

In the last scene, Dunk gets Eula; Pinkie goes with Bing; Tony is left with Newton; Major Todd and Nina become engaged, Newton's earthworms turn out to be valuable.

The play was presented four times—three times at Lawrence and once at Togus for the benefit of the disabled veterans.

Much praise should be given to Miss Margaret Totman, whose capable direction, patience and relentless effort were responsible for the play's unusual success.

ONE-ACT PLAY

Lawrence High School's contribution to the One-Act Play Contest which was held at Winslow, March 29, was "Are We Dressing?" directed by Mrs. Stevens.

The play takes place at the home of the Andrews. Polly (Carolyn Mingo) and Fred (Dwayne Pollard) have been invited to a party at the home of the Millards, the wealthiest people in the town. Having forgotten to ask whether they should dress formally or informally, Polly and Fred do not want to call back to ask their host, fearing he will think them "yokels", who do not know the appropriate thing to wear. Meanwhile, Mr. Andrews (Fred Robinson) is expecting Ivan Konrad (Daniel Oliver), who is to promote his product. When Greg (Theodore Julia) and Joan Millard (Jeanne Begin) drop in to meet Mr. and Mrs. Andrews (Darlene Nelson), Mr. Andrews mistakes them for his guests and his wife. He invites them into the kitchen for some corn beef and cabbage which Felicia (Juliette Begin), the maid, has prepared. While they are in the kitchen, the real guest arrives. Fred mistakes him for Greg Millard and infuriates him with the remarks intended for Greg. Konrad hurriedly leaves before seeing Mr. Andrews. All's well, however, as Greg Millard offers to carry Mr. Andrew's product in his father's chain of stores, and the party turns out to be a masquerade.

Much praise should be given Mrs. Stevens for the fine manner in which the play was presented.

Conductor	Reginald Campbell
Adviser	Mr. Hollis Hazen

This year the Future Farmers of Amercia Chapter appears to be developing into a strong group of farm boys, representing their school and community. For the past few years, because of war restrictions, all such groups in the nation have been seriously handicapped in doing the things they have wanted to do, but now that the war is over, we are determined to get back into stride and to help settle the peace.

At the beginning of last year, there were thirty boys signed up for vocational agriculture. During the year, five boys dropped out because of military enlistments, thus leaving only twenty-five to carry on the battle of raising food to help win the war. In spite of this difficulty, it gives me great pleasure to report on the work which was carried on during the summer, under the capable supervision of our instructor, Mr. Hazen.

Field Crops	4	3.2 Acres

Every one of these projects was carried out and almost all have been completed.

In September, thirty-six boys registered for vocational agriculture and we immediately settled down to develop a program of work. We set high goals and tried to attain new records. The following were some of our accomplishments:

1. Paid up membership for the year 100%.
2. Ten candidates received their Future Farmer Degree by the upper classmen.
3. Eighteen candidates received their Green Hand Degree.
4. Regular Chapter meetings were held.
5. Milk and cream was tested for butterfat and mastitis.
6. Soil was tested for pH, Nitrogen, Phosphorous and Potash.
7. Future Farmers Banquet was held.
8. Prepared to compete in the Science Contest at Waterville.
9. Twenty-five boys took improvement projects.
10. Twenty-five boys organized programs for the acquisition of farm skills.
11. Took third place at the District Competition Meet, held at Hampden.

The following improvements for Vocational Agriculture were made this year:

THE LAWRENCE LYRE

1. Several new reference books were purchased.
2. A temporary workshop for agricultural classes was provided.
3. A clock was borrowed for class-room use.
4. Through the State Board of Vocational Education a cabinet of Paint Study Equipment was loaned by the Lead Industries Association.

Mr. Hazen should be given much credit and praise for his excellent leadership, his untiring effort, and interest which are responsible for the Chapter's success.

KING AND QUEEN OF SPORTS

Henry Nicholas and Eleanor Estes were chosen this year's King and Queen of Sports. They were attended by Harriet Tucker, Dorothy Briggs, Turner Lawry, and Harold Walker.

The coronation, which proved to be one of the outstanding events of the year, was performed by last year's King and Queen of Sports, Thomas Peters and Leona Dutil, and took place at the "Sports Dance," sponsored by the Junior Class.

MAGAZINE CAMPAIGN

This year's Magazine Campaign, which took place in November, was conducted to raise money for band uniforms and to purchase a juke box.

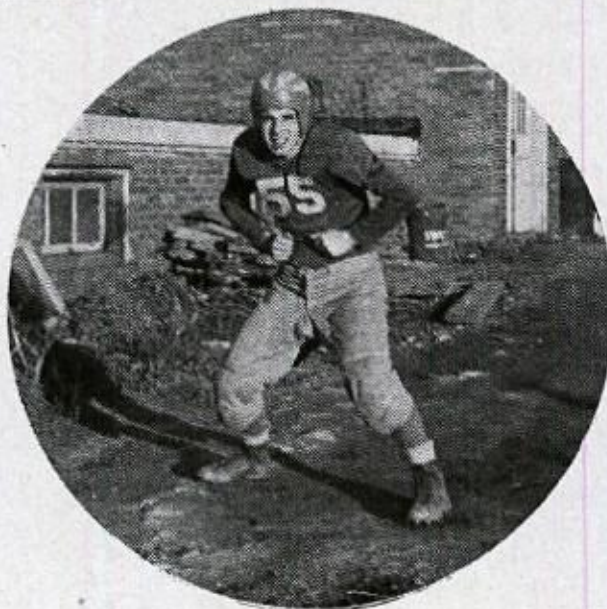

The student body was divided into two groups—the Grey and Blue. Robert Fales was chosen Captain of the Grey team, and Jacqueline Giroux, the Blue, Muriel Mitchell was appointed Business Manager.

When the Campaign closed, the Grey team had won. The total sales were $412.35. Clyde Spaulding was high salesman.

Other pupils who received prizes were: David Brophy, Ruth Wagner, and Markeda Dearborn.

FOOTBALL

Coaches "Don" Clement, "Danny" Barrett
 Captain "Hank" Nicholas
 Manager "Red" Knight

Prospects for a successful football season were very bright with seven lettermen returning to form the nucleus of the team. Many "rookies" also were present to fill the positions left by last year's graduates. Spirit was high, and with the young "rookies" giving the veterans plenty of competition for each position. Each player had to be on his toes if he wanted to hold down a position.

Much credit should be given our coaches and manager, who worked patiently to mold the team into a powerful machine.

MADISON, 19-12

In the first game of the season, the Lawrence players were full of confidence, but Madison was also out to avenge its last year's defeat at the hands of Lawrence. Madison opened the scoring early in the second half, but the Lawrence backs began ripping off long gains. Madison was unable to stop the terrific barrage of passing and running; consequently the Lawrence players walked off with a well-earned 19-12 win.

BELFAST, 45-6

Our next game was with a surprisingly weak Belfast team. Lack of experience was one of their main faults. After a torrid first half, the second stringers were inserted to finish out the game. The final score was 45-6.

WINSLOW, 13-13

Our natural enemy from across the Kennebec invaded our territory for our next game. After two straight victories, we were quite confident of repeating the victory of the previous year. Winslow, however, was not to be defeated that easily. The first half was over in a flash with neither team able to gain any yardage. In the second half, Winslow, releasing all its power and strength, scored two quick touchdowns. Then our team came back strong; Winslow was unable to stop neither the running of "Ray" Tardiff, "Red" Rafferty, and "Hank" Nicholas nor the spectacular catches of "Jack" Hunter. Every member of the team fought for all he was worth, and the result—two quick touchdowns and a well-deserved 13-13 tie.

THE LAWRENCE LYRE

GARDINER, 12-0

In this game, there were some changes in the line-up: Robert Howlett replaced "Hank" Nicholas, who had a badly sprained wrist; "Dick" Brophy, having a serious head injury, was replaced by "Art" McGraw. Gardiner was undefeated, and so were we! On the opening kick-off, our boys marched on to the first touchdown, which brightened their spirits, and we kept on marching to a 12-0 win.

JOHN BAPST, 7-20

For our first defeat of the year we traveled to John Bapst, which had a much heavier and more experienced team. Although Lawrence was close to scoring several times, penalties, setting the team back on its heels each time, were imposed, and Bapst won 20-7.

SKOWHEGAN, 12-0

Another undefeated team, and again we sent them back home with a defeat. The Indians failed to prove threatening, and the powerful Lawrence team scored another 12-0 victory.

WATERVILLE, 0-7

Waterville was another undefeated team which we had high hopes of defeating. Our hopes, however, faded when early in the game Waterville passed to score the only touchdown of the game. Lawrence, driving to the 10-yard line, threatened in the second period, only to be stopped by a hard charing Waterville line. The remainder of the game was played at mid-field with neither team being able to make any headway. The final score was 7-0 in the Panther's favor.

WINSLOW, 0-7

Our second game with Winslow proved to be a woeful affair. The Lawrence team, opening up with all its guns, drove to the Winslow 5-yard line early in the game, but it lacked the necessary "punch" to go over for a touchdown. Several other times we penetrated deep into the Winslow territory, but again we failed. The highlight of the game was a brilliant run by "Spike" Yotides of Winslow, who scored the only touchdown of the game. The seniors who played in this last football game at Lawrence were "Hank" Nicholas, "Jack" Hunter, "Si" Lawry, "Hal" Walker and "Art" McGraw.

Thus ends the football season of 1945 with a record of four wins, three losses, and one tie.

BASKETBALL

This year's basketball team could boast of only two lettermen—Henry Nicholas and Richard Brophy. Since there were many capable players that could be moved up from last year's J. V. team, the team, under the able coaching of "Danny" Barrett, was molded into a fairly strong five.

There were several major occurrences during the season. Perhaps the most surprising was our defeat at the hands of Clinton. The next highlight was a very impressive win over a strong Winslow team. The Lawrence team was behind until the fourth period when the entire team acquired new life. By its accurate shooting, the team came through victorious. When the smoke was finally away, Lawrence had won by a 35-28 score. The defeat for Winslow was perhaps partly responsible for ruining its chance of attending the Tournament.

Three games were cancelled at the end of the season because of a scarlet fever epidemic, which closed school for a three weeks' period. So ended the basketball season with a record of ten victories and eight defeats.

Those who received letters were: Henry Nicholas, Edwin Pillsbury, Richard Brophy, Robert Nicholas, Philip Cameron, Andrew Rafferty.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

This year the the Girls' Basketball Team, under the skilled training of Mr. Jonnassen, played a nine-game schedule and came through without a single defeat.

While there was no feature game of the year, there were many thrillers. One of the most exciting was the home game played with Kents Hill. Through the first three quarters the game was a tie, but in the fourth quarter, the Lawrence lassies proved too powerful for their visiting sisters and gained a 29-23 victory.

BASEBALL

This year's baseball team turned out as well as it was expected. To date, the team has a total of two wins and seven losses. The cause for our defeat has been attributed to the lack of seasoned veterans in the infield and on the pitching staff. With most of the players returning next year, the prospects are favorable for a successful season.

The schedule of games is as follows:

Norman Beaulieu: "General Motors and General Electric—both have lots of power."

THE LAWRENCE LYRE

Edwin Pillsbury: "I've told thousands of women where to get off."

Mary Ann Emery: "You must be a lady killer."

Edwin Pillsbury: "No, I run an elevator in a department store!"

Arland Mitchell: "I want to buy a pencil."

Richard Ellis: "Hard or soft?"

Arland Mitchell: "Hard—it's for a stiff test."

Helen Kenniston: "Do you think you're handsome and manly?"

Jack Hunter: "Yes, and I'm good-looking, too."

Coleman Dyer: "I was offered ten thousand dollars to fight the heavy-weight champion."

Teddie Julia: "Well, what are you holding out for?"

Coleman Dyer: "Free medical treatment!"

Miss Thomas: "Surely, Miss Hebert, you know the King's English?"

Ann Hebert: "Of course, he is. Who ever said he wasn't?"

Lucille Violette: "What's the difference between a sewing machine and a kiss?"

Harriet Tucker: "I don't know. What is the difference?"

Lucille Violette: "One sews seams nice and the other seems so nice."

Adrienne Beaulieu: "This sandwich could be improved a lot."

Arland Mitchell: "How so?"

Adrienne Beaulieu: "By a little mark to show which corner the meat is in."

Arthur McGraw: "I wouldn't vote for you if you were Saint Peter himself."

Carl Hamlin: "If I were Saint Peter, you couldn't vote for me. You wouldn't be in my district."

Mrs. Thyng: "Fales, translate 'Rex fugit'."

Robert Fales: "The King flees."

Mrs. Thyng: "You should always use 'has' in translating the perfect tense."

Robert Fales: "The King has flees."

(This conversation took place between two boys as they walked out of a history examination.)

Robert Fales: "Man, I really flunked that one!"

Turner Lawry: "But didn't you have the answers written on your shirt cuff?"

Robert Fales: "Yes—but today I was wearing my chemistry shirt."
